School of Medicine

And So It All Began . . .

With the letter from the Admissions Committee, medical school began. The Committee invited almost 270 people to become medical students for the Medical Class of 1992. We came from various backgrounds, at varying ages and from different educational institutions with the same goal of becoming a doctor.

From orientation, we were quickly assimilated into the medical school thought and form. We were dispersed across the state into nine regional campuses to conquer medical school and to conquer the state.

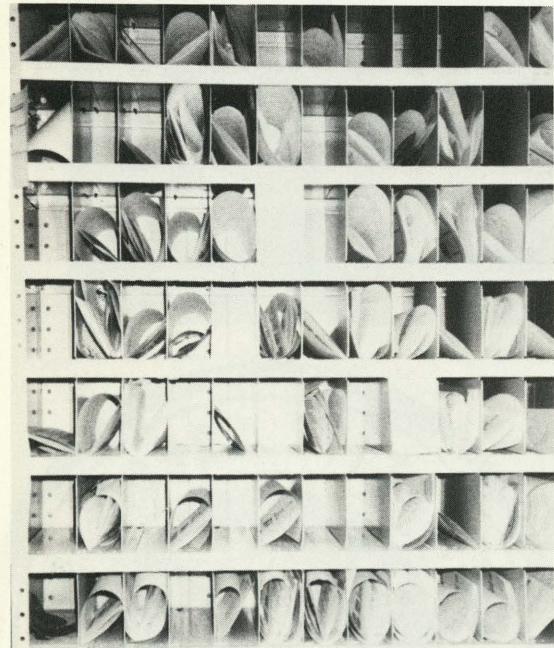

Throughout the year, we learned about Kreb and his cycle, Gray and everything he knew about anatomy.

Micro taught us about the "bugs" and "germs" out in the world. Histology helped us see how cells are made and physiology showed us how those cells functioned. In anatomy, we learned how those same cells make up organs and how they are all interconnected.

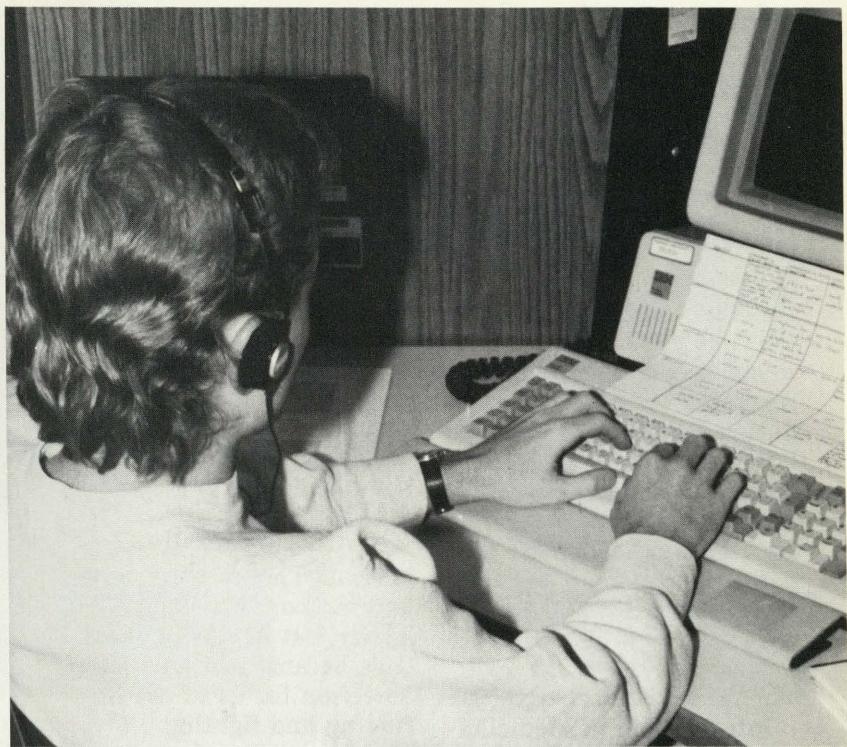

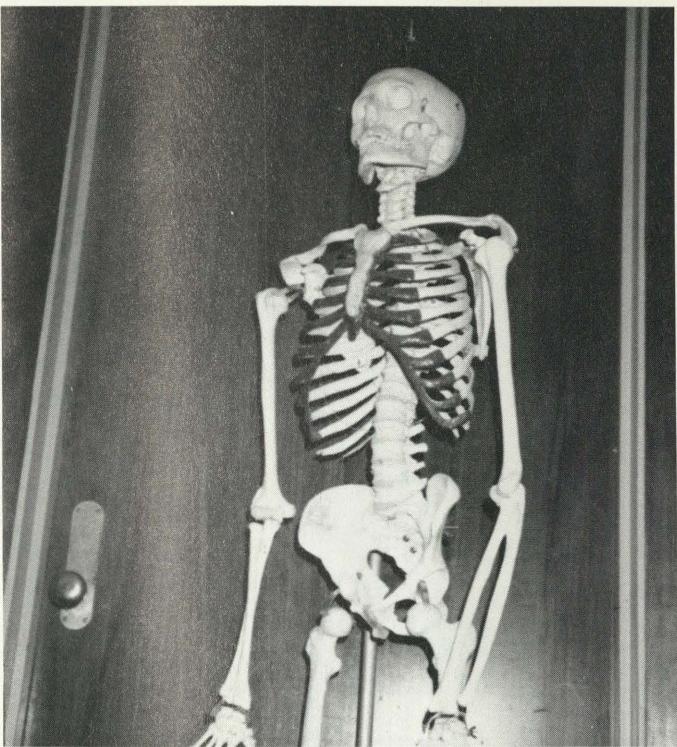

And through all of the studying, we found some time to make new friends, see old friends and have fun. Each campus found their own ways to make medical school enjoyable.

Through all of this, we were learning the foundations of how to become a doctor.

The Medical Story Continues . . .

The second year of medical school brought some new changes to our lives. We went from studying normals during the first year to abnormalities in our second year. Disease processes were the focus during Pathology. First, we learned about organ diseases, then we learned about systemic diseases. In Pharmacology, we learned how some of these diseases could be treated and the wide variety of medicines that we could use to make our patients better.

Introduction to Medicine helped form the basic foundation for all of our clinical courses to come. Individual organ systems were studied along with those clinical aspects of diagnosis and treatment. Finally, we were learning the practical aspects of medicine.

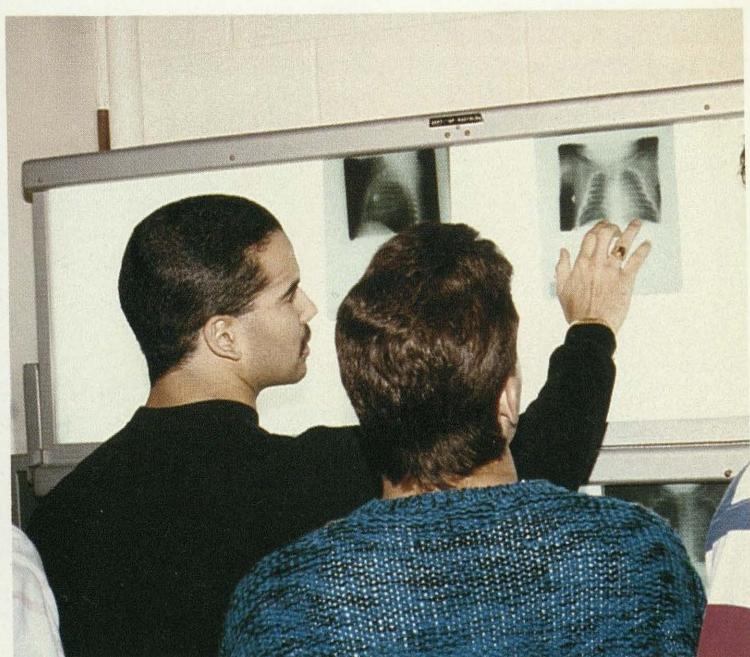

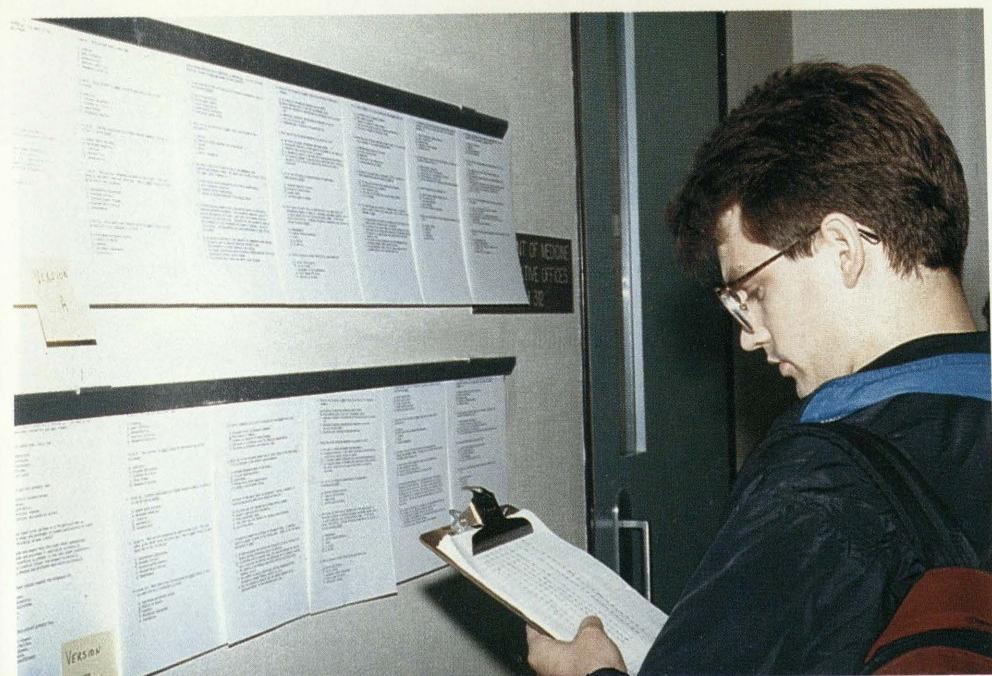

We also started having experience with patients in our first contacts during history taking and physical diagnosis. That little black bag became our best friend by helping us see patients in a whole new way. Our new stethoscope helped us hear that almost silent murmur in the newborn, as well as the sounds of emphysema in an elderly patient. The ophthalmoscope and otoscope were no longer just "lights" but they became instruments of detection for us to use in finding and fighting disease.

The end of sophomore year was shrouded in fear because of Boards Part I. The two day experience proved to be painful to both the brain and the gluteal muscles, but we survived. We were one step closer to becoming a doctor.

The End Within Reach . . .

Sometime during the summer break after our second year, we no longer were just students but we became student-doctors. We returned as a whole class back to the Indianapolis campus.

We were exposed to new and vastly different experiences. There was "rounding", a resident-dependent experience that could be interesting, educational, or boring. There was "staffing", a staff-dependent experience that could also be the same. There was "scut", an educational experience at first that soon became a hassle. Then there was "call" which was a mind-numbing, boring hassle.

Junior year was filled with many exciting clinical experiences in the various hospitals around Indy. Whether it was Pediatric Surgery at Riley or the "prized" OB at Methodist, we spent the year learning more about medicine and how to deal with patients.

During those months many of us finally figured out what specialty choice we wanted to make. We chose our senior advisor and spent the latter part of our junior year deciding about our senior electives. We began to quickly anticipate the fun and excitement of our senior year yet to come.

Finally, The End . . .

Senior year brought freedom from the required courses except for our required month in Ambulatory Care. We were able to do what we wanted and to go where we wanted. Many students took the opportunity to check out hospitals for future residency selections and many students took the opportunity to go to exciting parts of the country and the world.

We all approached Boards II with the same "excitement" as Boards I. There really was less fuss and fury than Boards I.

We were also busy completing applications for residency positions and trying desperately to get an interview at the hospitals of our choice. We fretted and worried but survived.

The deadline came for the dreaded X802 paper during the middle of our interviewing time. The match selections were placed in the computer during January and February. We had almost an entire month before the residency spots were revealed on March 18.

May brought us to the end of medical school with our Senior Banquet at the Indiana Roof. Our final activity was Graduation at the Hoosier Dome on May 10, 1992.

The Fun We Created . . .

In the midst of all the education, we found some time to get together and have great fun. Whether it was just a small gathering at the regional campuses or a larger party on the Indianapolis campus, we were determined to find that small amount of time for rest and relaxation.

The medical school also helped organize certain activities to help keep us entertained. A tradition was started with dressing up for the Halloween Party. We all came decked out in the strangest costumes. The Christmas Dance always seemed to draw us out in our dressy duds to see each other and celebrate the holiday season. Whether it was coming out after that awful Medicine exam or dressing up in those unusual costumes, we found time to spend with each other outside of medicine.

These activities proved to be a much awaited and much needed way to spend some of the precious spare time of medical school.

Where It All Began . . .

The IU School of Medicine was founded in 1903 in Bloomington with an initial class of 25 students. In 1908, several smaller medical schools were united with IU when the General Assembly mandated that IU would assume the responsibility of medical education in Indiana.

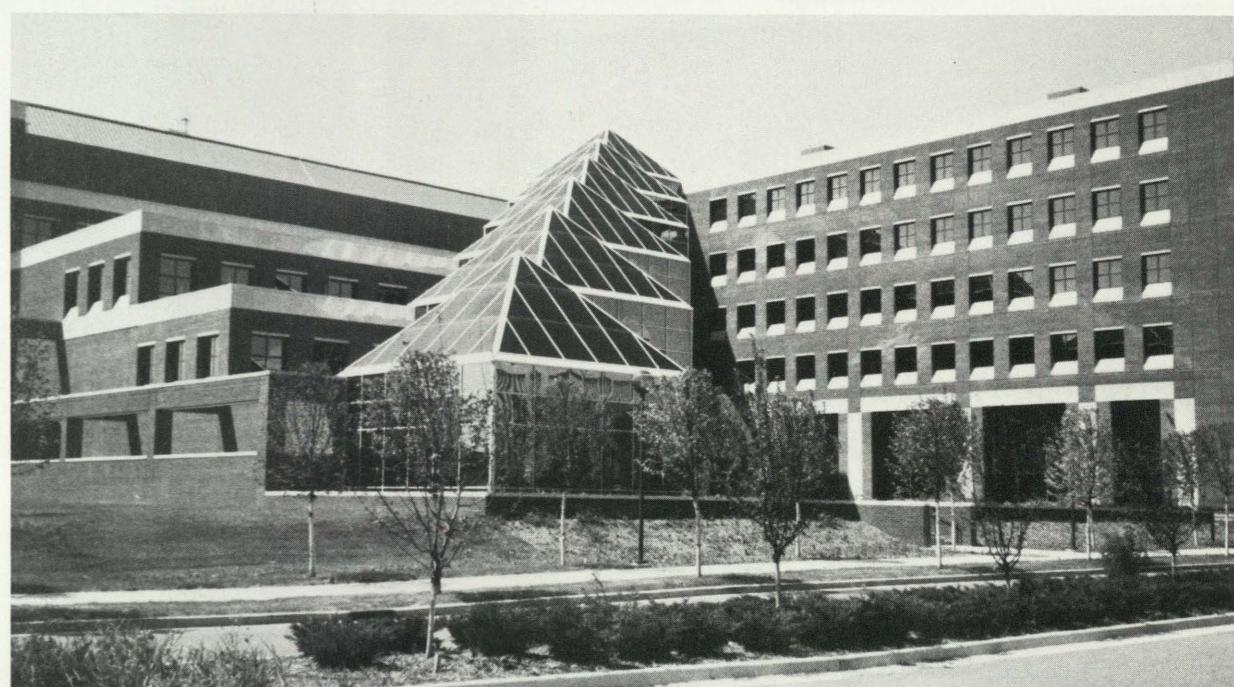

From 1912 to 1958, the students spent the first year in Bloomington and the remaining three years in Indianapolis. The greater need for physicians in Indiana during the 1960's lead to the establishment of the Statewide Medical Education System. This created regional campuses at Purdue and Notre Dame in 1968 and four other centers in 1973. The first year of medical school was taught at these centers until 1980 when the second year was added to each campus. In 1981, Fort Wayne joined the system teaching only first year.

No matter which campus a student was on during their first years, the goal of the IU medical system has always been to produce excellent doctors with a sound foundation in basic sciences and clinical medicine. Now, with an enrollment of over 1,000 students each year and the second largest medical school in the US, IU continues to produce excellent physicians.

Fort Wayne

Each of us could have picked a thousand places we would have rather been than "Fort Lonely" in the wintertime. Sixteen of us, sentenced to the great white north to begin our medical education, gathered with high hopes and even higher blood pressures. Suppressing the fear of the unknown and without an upper class to guide and support us, we pressed on, undaunted, with a minimum of adult supervision.

We found ourselves isolated on one floor of a building in the middle of a campus we never saw. With cadavers, books and notes as our roadmaps to knowledge, we struck out on the highway of medical education. We found those roads to be as boring and tedious as a drive up I-69, but a necessary pilgrimage that would forever change the way we thought.

The tedium and frustration of endless lectures and subsequent hours of studying was soon channeled in more physical outlets. Attitude adjustment sessions were held at O'Sullivan's and Our Place. Idle lunchtimes switched from Andy Griffith to the fast-paced world of HACK. More specifically — Ballistic, Missile and Killer Hack. Our pent-up frustrations were taken out on that little leather ball and every effort was made to avoid the Niner. These efforts to cope taught us other non-medical facts like ... toilet paper can be a lethal weapon, racquetballs and research displays do not mix, the student lounge is not a gymnasium, a hack cannot displace a ceiling tile, alpha-bungarotoxin is not always effective, fast moving chairs do not corner well, and the "Collection of Neat Things" was a marvel unto itself. Unfortunately, these antics soon won us the labels of the number three class year in likability but number one in immaturity. These labels we wore with pride.

Time passes and luckily so did we. Soon after the Canadian geese returned north, we headed south to the Indy campus for round two of our mental bout. By the end of our sentence, we left as many marks on the walls as the year did on us. As with any group forced into close quarters in times of stress, we studied, laughed, yelled, fought, worried, and celebrated with each other. Friendships were made that time will never undo. In all, Master, Chuckster, Boojie, the Ligament of Crites, Crazy Legs, Halogen, Gland, Op Man, Tracer, Big Dave, V man, Mrs. Watson, Edmund Degradation, Smythe, Dean-O and Christine Weeeeeee will always be the Fort Wayne Center for Medical Education Class of 1988.

Gary-Northwest

Four years ago, sixteen of us embarked, to "da region". Half of us were region rats and the other half were immigrants. We had an age range of 21 to 36. Several of us had master degrees and some of us gave up careers. A quarter of us were female.

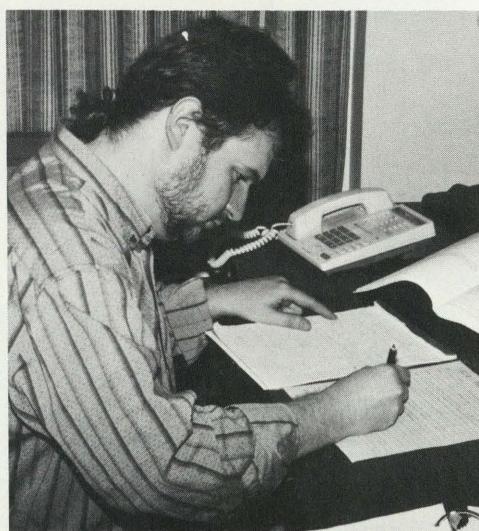

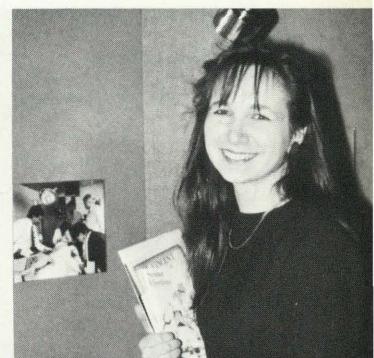

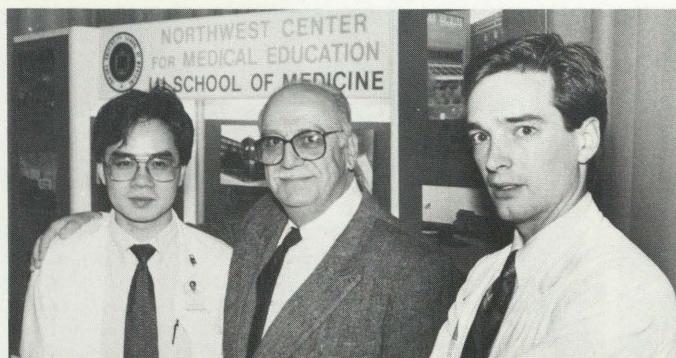

We quickly lost one. The rest of us endured through Gross Anatomy; never sure whether to follow V.B.'s finger or the shadow. Then the Histo slides of Virgil seemed to have only one color — yellow. The next semester had its own trials with Neuroanatomy and Biochem taking its toll.

That summer we split up to work, attend shadowing programs, or do research. So much for our last summer vacation.

Our second year began. We found a new reality with Fester. We learned what was funny in Physiology. We were taught all the European drugs in Pharm. And we found a thyroid nodule in H&P. Our second year at the Northwest Center of Medical Education ended, as well as our time in Gary.

To my fellow region rats, I wish you happiness, health and success.

— William Buckley, MD

TOP TEN METHODS IN GARY USED TO MAKE GROSS ANATOMY BEARABLE:

10. Sleep with a sophomore
9. Acquire old exams from sophomores
8. Sleep with your cadaver
7. Follow the Shadow not the Finger "pp33 in Vandenbergre's book of hand gestures"
6. Mutilate all cadavers but your own
5. Know origins and insertions
4. If Vandenbergre says "know it", forget it. If he says "forget it", know it!
3. People, work the lab, work the lab, work the lab.
2. Steal Vandenbergre's car the morning before the exam
1. Bring a jar of KY Jelly to every exam.

Muncie

In August 1988, sixteen medical students made their way into the Medical Science Building for the first time. This was to be their home away from home for the next two years. During the course of those two years, the Muncie Center students developed bonds with one another that can only be developed by sharing the same adversity. From long hours in Anatomy lab to the seemingly endless Biochemistry final, they shared it all.

In spite of the demands on their time, the Muncie students could find some time for recreation. Many a meeting was called in the "Chug" (a local bar) to discuss the effects of alcohol on the average medical student or to simply sit and complain about how unfair a question was on a given test. The group was able to help each other through these difficult times.

Memorable moments and people at the Muncie Center included Lee's parties, the intramural basketball team's trip to the finals, post-test at the "Chug", games of pool, Jane, "golf" on the computer, "Geraldo" at noon, and the day after the last final. Also of note was that six medical students in class got married just before or during the second year of school.

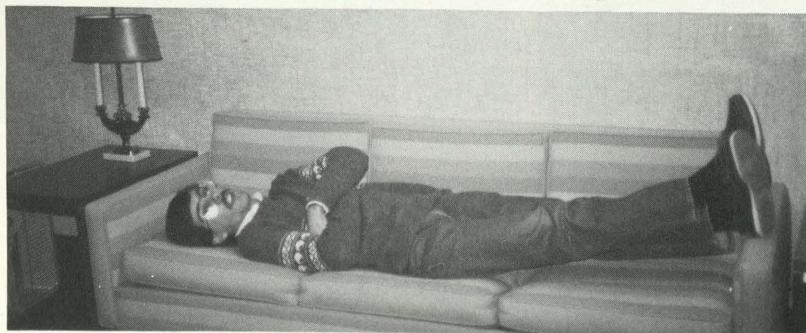

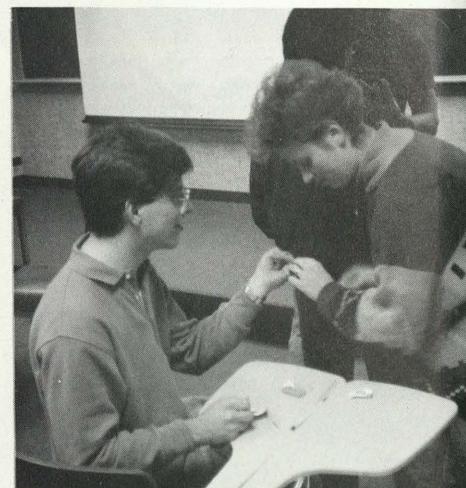

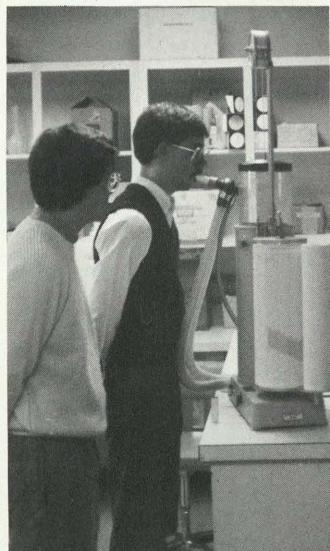

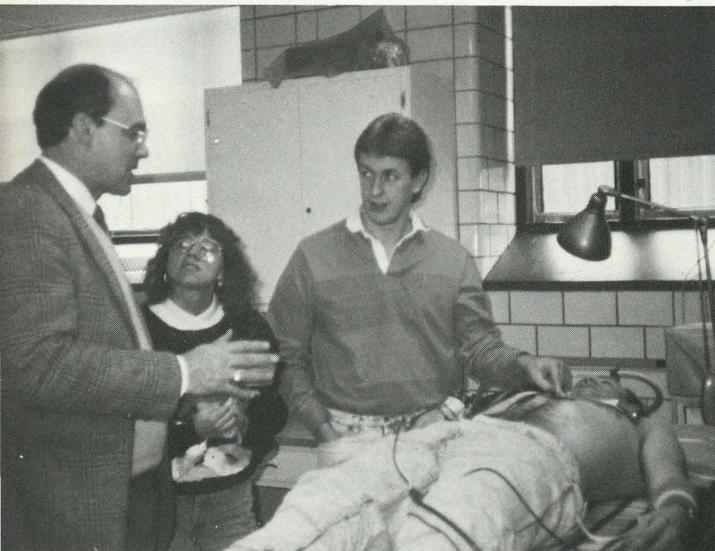

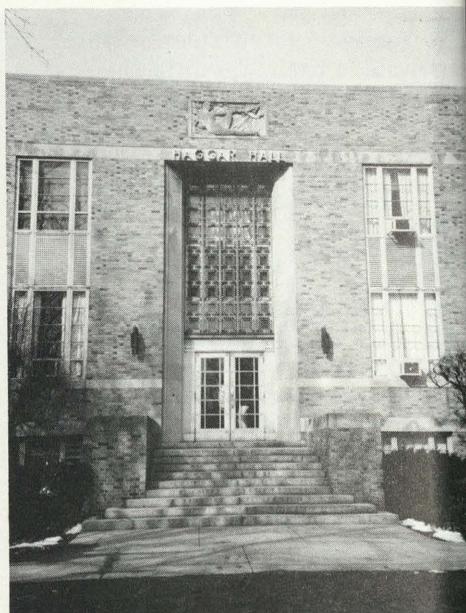

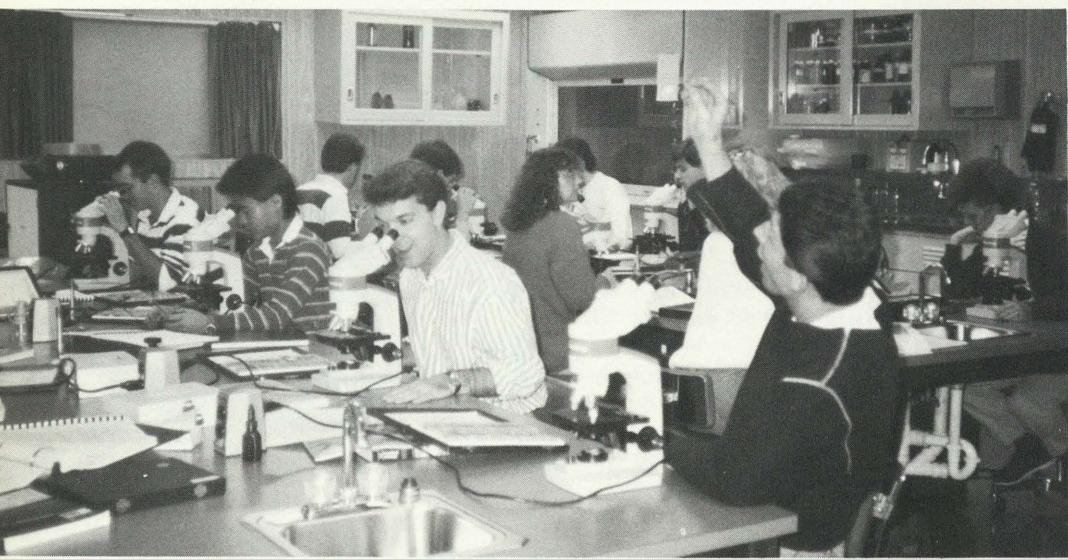

Finally, it is with regret that the students of the Muncie Center have to say good-bye to Dr. Kennedy who passed away shortly after retiring in 1991.

So hats off and good luck to Troy, Steve, Jane, Bob, Leanne, Debbie, Kathy, Mike, Ron, Bill, Rob, Shannon, Oren, Shane, and Doug. Good luck in your medical careers.

Terre Haute

Terre Haute: High Ground, Refuge or isolated desert island?! We came, we saw (and couldn't believe our eyes), and we survived our 2 year exile.

It's not the facility or even the instructors that made a lasting impression on us, so much as the 13 unique personalities who were brought together by the "powers that be". Their images we will always remember:

Eric Chun — A San Diego boy who became an expert at finding the free drug lunch after he discovered that "authentic" Mexican cuisine in TH consisted solely of Taco Bell.

Victor Kirchoff — He went that extra mile and wore cowboy boots to Gross Anatomy lab in order to impress Dr. Murphy only to throw it all away by addressing him as "Mr" Murphy.

Ann Shin — She was able to sleep through anything — even the Gross Anatomy Final!

Kevin Fritz — A.K.A. the Blonde Bombshell. He was able to sleep in class with head erect, thus creating the illusion of attentiveness.

Melanie Johannesson — She actually enjoyed reading Stryor's Biochemistry book, and once, using a baby grand piano as her weapon, dueled valiantly against the booming bass of AC/DC at the class Halloween Party.

Greg Scheible — A true Hoosier boy who bleeds cream and crimson. He believes God's country is Bloomington, and that one gets hemorrhoids from sitting on cold, hard cement.

André Stovall — He predictably arrived to class as exams were being handed out, and was frequently heard asking, "Should I have studies for this one?"

Scott Ripple — "You know, Scott — that red-headed kid." He was fortunate enough to learn the art of rectal examinations on the father of one of his high school buddies.

David Lemke — A true Parrott head who would rather water ski than study any day.

Janis Ingebrigsten — A champion of comfort, Janis wore sweats to school almost every day. Of course, this may have been because she was constantly working out as she carried all of her textbooks to class daily in what appeared to be a large steamer locker.

Deanne Lazer — Always a soft-spoken, even-tempered and practical sort, Deanne once impulsively purchased a new car after spying it in the shopping mall through a sleep-deprived and alcohol-induced haze.

David Szentes — He was king of the "Rally Cap", and a magnet for robust women. After a heavily celebrated Halloween dressed as a devil, David could never understand why his pictures were blurry.

Emily Cline — She suffered from frequent temporal-like seizures which caused her to break into song — especially in Gross Anatomy lab! "Aruba, Jamaica, Ooh, I want to take you . . ."

Senior Activities

Boards II

September 25-26, 1991

The month of September culminated in the return of National Boards and 8:00 came very early on September 25. But, we were prepared to deal with what lay ahead of us for Boards II. Did we bring our admission tickets, enough #2 pencils and snack food to get us through the day? Only time and the day would tell. We had the pleasure of sitting in assigned seats in Emerson Hall and the Nursing Building one more time. After passing out the first test booklet, the atmosphere in the rooms became very business and professional-like. We seemed to congregate outside the buildings after each test booklet not wanting to talk about the test, but it was the only thing on our minds. And finally we were done with the first day of testing, only to know we had one more day to go.

The second day seemed less stressful for some and more stressful for others, but we all seemed to survive knowing that the After Boards II Party would soon follow.

Jackson Street Bar welcomed us together to relieve our tensions and to celebrate the end of another milestone of our time at IU School of Medicine. It also marked the first official function of our senior year. We danced, ate, drank and were merry until late in the night. It was a great time to catch up on each other's activities as well as discuss senior year activities.

Below: Now, in which NMS book was that answer located?

Bill Springer and Julie Bennett heatedly debate the answers to Boards II. Left: Toasting the finish of Boards II are John Butler and Bill Marrocco.

Match Day

March 18, 1992

Match Day was a day full of tension and surprises. It was the day we discovered if all the interview trips and the nights in the cheap hotels paid off for us in helping to obtain a residency position.

The day began at 8:30am for those students with student loans to attend their exit interview. We were entertained by various faculty and officials as they bored us with facts on repayment, consolidation and forbearance. It seemed like noon would never arrive.

After the long wait, noon finally came. Dr. Carter made some quick announcements to the class in B26 and then it was a quick exodus to the Old Library to stand in long lines to receive our match results. When the dust settled, the entire class was matched with a residency spot.

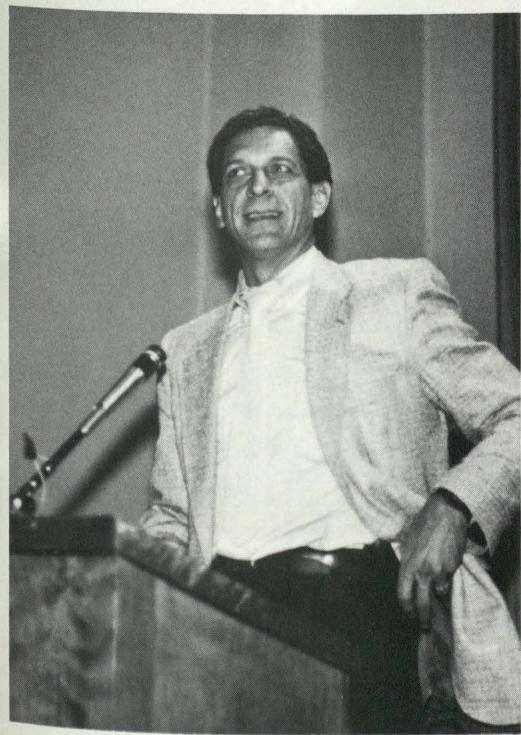

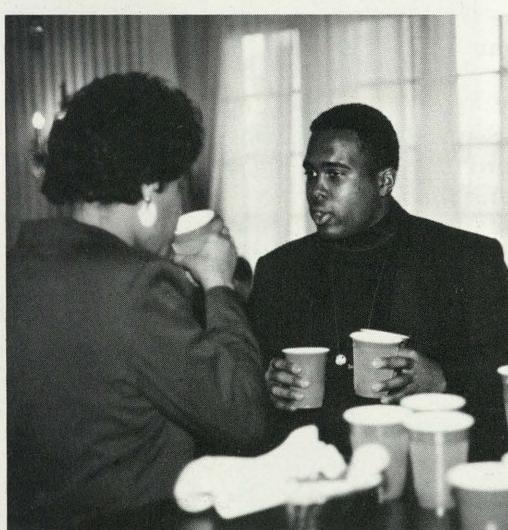

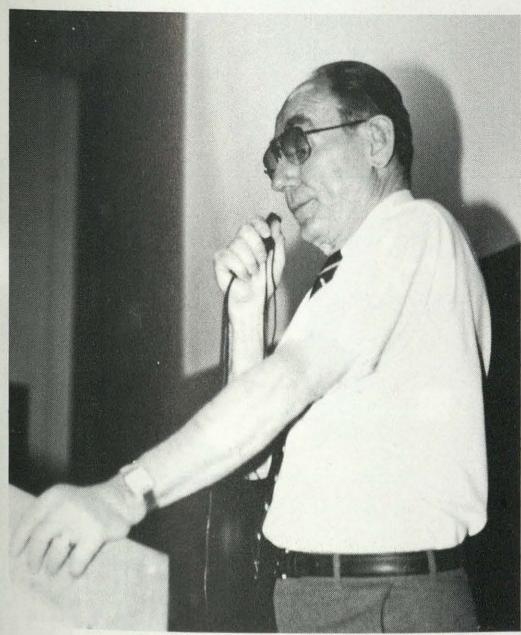

Then came the Match Day Reception at the Woodstock Country Club. There was conversation about where everyone was going to be next year, good food and good drinks. Dr. Rolly McGrath relived many memories of his medical career with us. After the official party, many continued to celebrate at some of Indianapolis' establishments. This was the beginning of our last few times together at IU Medical School and although we were excited to be moving on, it meant moving away from so many of our friends and family as we unofficially started our professional careers.

Sr. Banquet

May 1, 1992

The Indiana Roof Ballroom was decked out in red and white as we gathered for our Senior Awards Banquet. This annual event is to pay tribute to outstanding faculty and senior students and to celebrate our graduation from medical school. This also marks the final opportunity prior to graduation for the entire class to see and wish each other good luck before residencies begin.

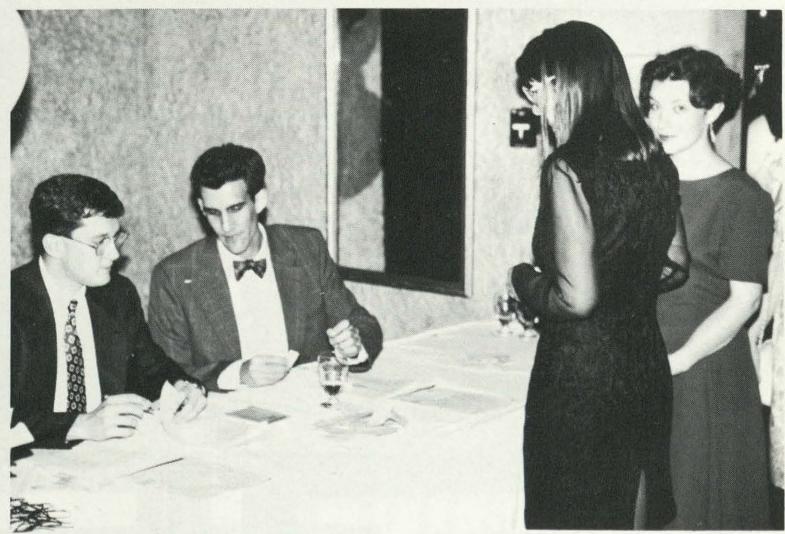

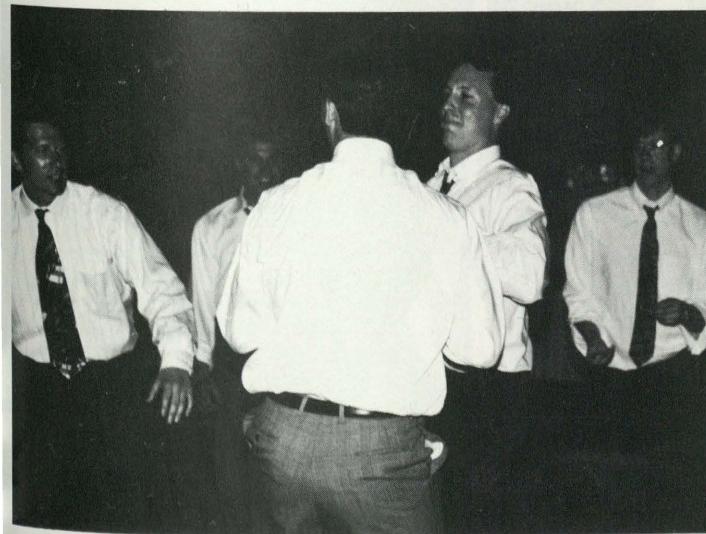

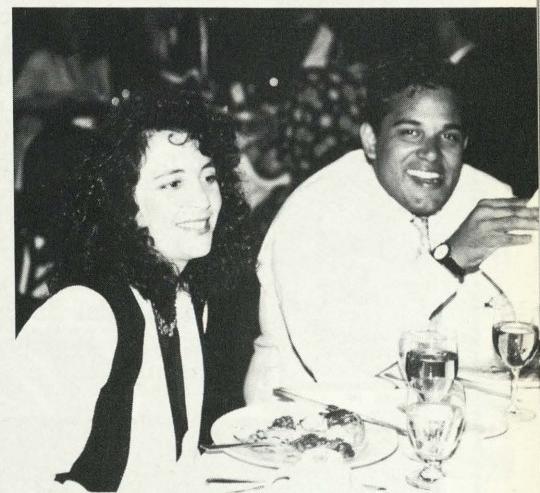

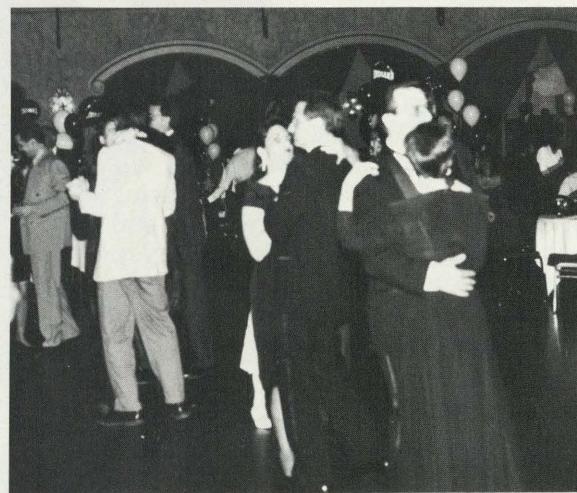

The festivities began with greetings from the class by Vance Raham as he recalled many moments during our four years at IU. Bill Buckley then introduced the guest speaker Dr. Woodrow Myers. Dr. Myers spoke about "the best of times and the worst of times" in medicine today. Laura Crecelius presented the Outstanding Basic Science and Clinical Science Professor Awards. The Outstanding House Officer was presented to Dr. Michael McMahon, OB/Gyn Resident. The Outstanding Clinical Clerkship Award was presented to the Pediatrics Department. The Golden Apple Award, given to the most outstanding professor, was then presented to Dr. Lynn Willis, Pharmacology and Toxicology Professor.

Dr. Walter Daly then presented the Senior Student Awards for School Service and Departmental Awards. The Marcus Ravdin Award for high academic honor was presented to Richard Rejer. The Upjohn Academic Achievement Award was presented to Timothy Sutton. Jim Kruer gave the closing remarks, recalling his time as President of our class.

With the formal evening activities complete, the mingling, music, and dancing began the night of celebration. This would mark the last event the IU Medical School Class of 1992 would spend together in celebration.

Graduation

May 10, 1992

After 1456 days, 2000+ hours of lectures, 10000+ pages of notes and $45,000 of debt, the moment finally came for the Class of 1992 to officially receive the piece of paper proving that medical school was over and a medical career was just beginning.

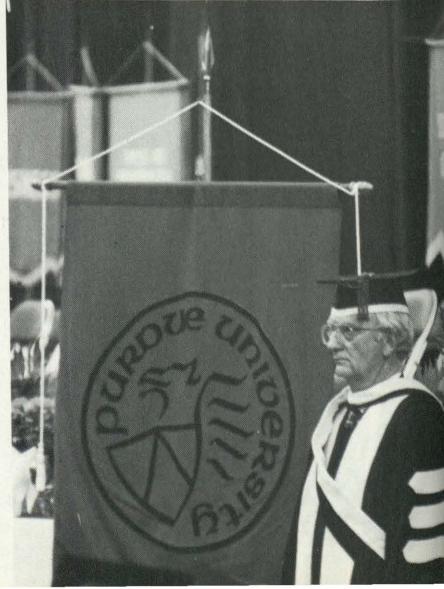

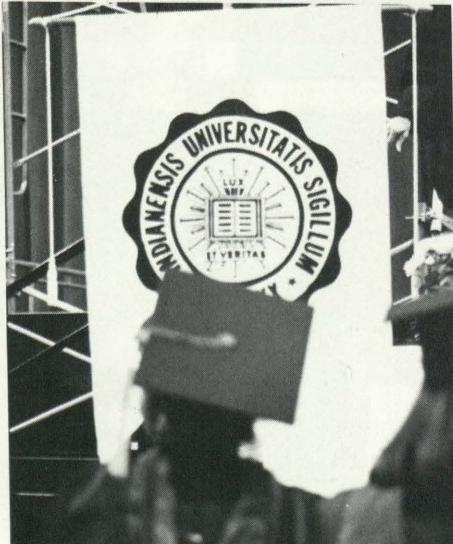

The Hoosier Dome was the site for commencement. We lined up on the floor of the Hoosier Dome attempting to put on our hoods and mortars in that "doctorly" way for all who had come to watch us graduate.

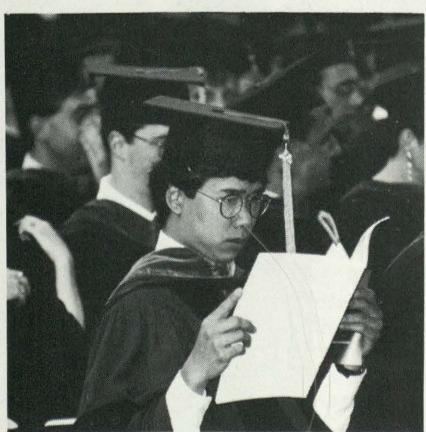

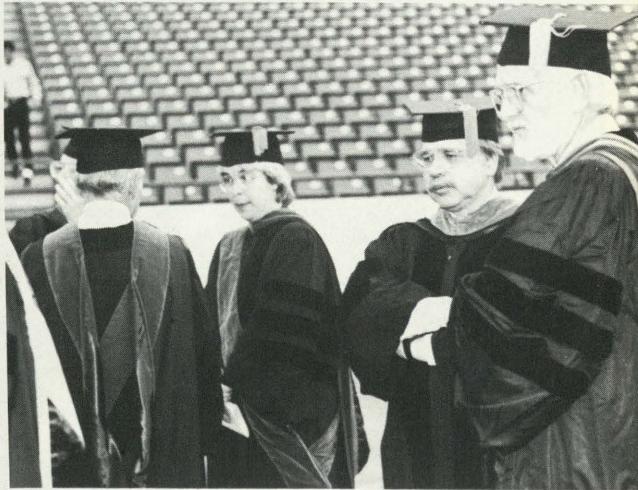

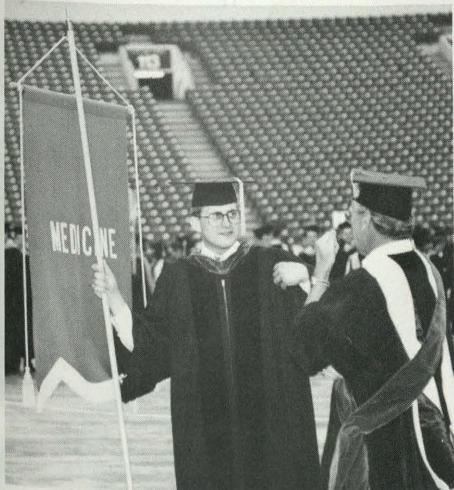

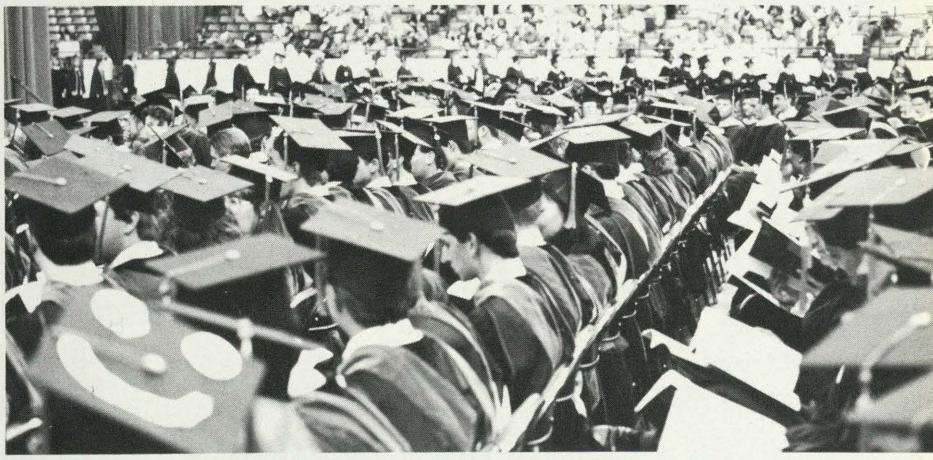

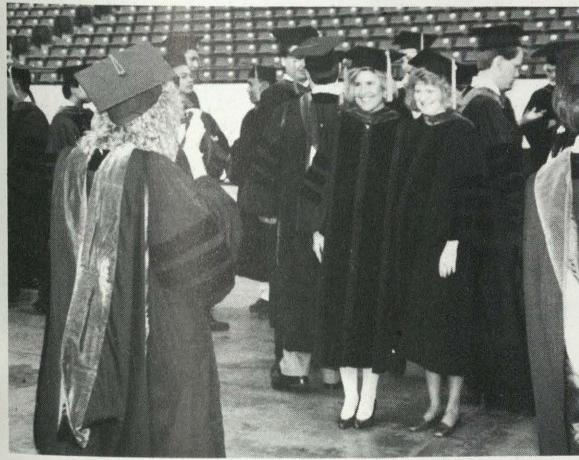

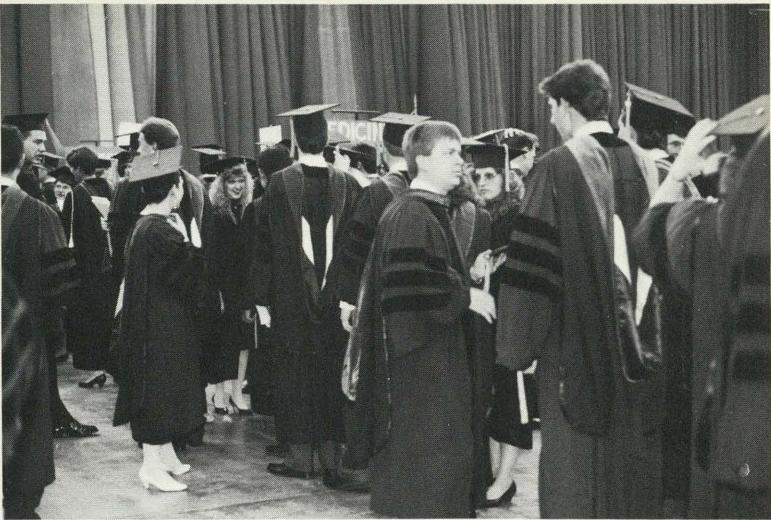

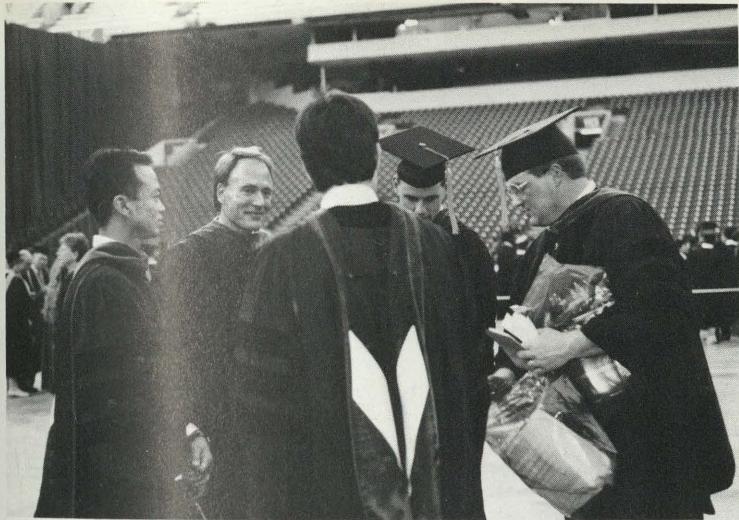

The IUPUI ceremony officially marked the introductions of the new IU alumni as IU President Tomas Ehrlich conferred the degrees on the School of Medicine graduates as well as on the graduates of 14 other departments. Afterward, we marched back behind the curtain to line up, one more time, for the Medical School Ceremony to begin.

We marched back out under the watchful eyes of our families, friends and the faculty to start the Medical School Ceremony. All 245 members of the Class of 1992 recited the Declaration of Geneva (the modern Oath of Hippocrates) to be officially admitted into the medical profession. As our names were called, we each walked across the stage receiving our diploma-filled red tubes to the cheers of our relatives and friends. Janet Roepke then recited the Maimonides Prayer, an ethical guide to the medical profession. Then, at last, the ceremony was finished. We were Doctors of Medicine graduating from Indiana University School of Medicine in the Class of 1992.

"What lies behind us and what lies before us are tiny matters compared to what lies within."

My love goes with you!
Carol

Hugs from Anne Marie!

Ronald Neely Duncan, Jr.

We begat a ray of sunshine
Into our life, the other day,
And sent it down the valley
Along its shadowed way.
It met a little sadness,
A little doubt and fear,
but in its lovely gladness
Left a path of smiling cheer.
With all our love
to Ron and Kim Duncan,
Pop & Mom.

Daniel James Fagan

We are all so proud!
Love, Dad and Mother Fagan and your three sisters.

The best things are nearest:
breath in your nostrils,
light in your eyes,
flowers at your feet,
duties at your hand,
the path of God
just before you.

— Robert Louis Stevenson

Scott Allen Ripple
We saw your future taking shape at the age of nine, when you
"doctored" the oprhaned kitten.
Good Luck!
Mom and Dad

Vicki Marie Roe
Your love of people and life will make you a great physician as it has made you a great person.
Congratulations and Love,
Your Dad "The Hare", Linda and all the Roe Family

To Vicki: In memory of your mother who would be so proud.
"There is only one kind of beauty that can transcend time, and many women possess it. It is, of course, beauty of the spirit that lights the eyes and transforms even a plain woman into a beautiful one. Women with wit, charm, and warmth, who are interested in others and forget themselves and who accept each stage of life gracefully, are the lasting beauties of this world and the happiest."

The physician in private practice is special to us.

"We believe the physician in private practice is a very special person. We respect his immense dedication and admire his tireless efforts to provide his patients the very finest health care possible. We do our best, so that the private practitioner can do his best, secure in the knowledge that his hospitalized patients will receive the excellent care he deems essential. Our philosophy is to work in partnership with the physician in an atmosphere of complete cooperation and to complement his efforts to maintain the private practice of high quality medicine at a reasonable cost. The private practitioner and private hospital share a common goal. We're proud to be part of that partnership."

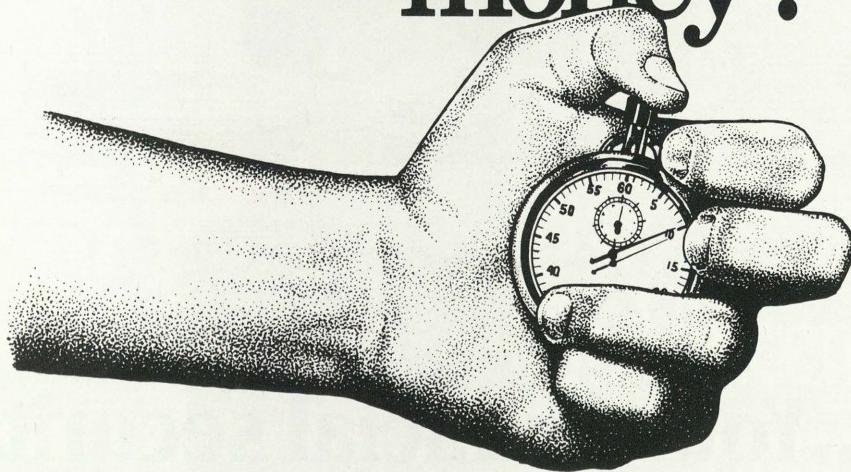

We congratulate the Medical Class of 1992 of the Indiana University School of Medicine and wish you success and happiness as you continue the pursuit of your chosen specialties.

The Caduceus is a staff with two entwined snakes and two wings at the top. It originally was the wand of Hermes or Mercury, the messenger of the Gods. The Caduceus is said to have become a symbol associated with the medical profession in the 16th century when Sir William Butts, physician to King Henry VIII of England, adopted the double snake staff as his personal professional coat of arms. Since then, it has been adopted as the official symbol of several medical organizations, including the U.S. Public Health Service and the Army Medical Corps.

The Staff of Aesculapius is considered to be the true and proper medical symbol. This wand bearing a single entwined snake is the walking stick which was carried by Aesculapius, the divine healer of the Greeks and Romans. The knotty rod is a symbol of support for the weak and for renewal of life. The Staff of Aesculapius has been adopted as the symbol of medical organizations such as the American Medical Association and the Indiana University School of Medicine.
